FRANCE.

THE SIEGE OF PARIS.

PARIS, Oct. 14, via LONDON.—The reports of the sortie from Paris are untrue. They are invented by the friends of occasioning meetings of the people. The Prussians hold Versailles, Meudon, Chatillon, Bagneux, and Bourg-la-Reine. Two small skirmishes occurred yesterday, on Thursday, and Friday, with the Prussian outposts, which resulted in beating the Prussians.

SOCIALIST DEMONSTRATION.

A Prussian report that Rochefort, after an absence of four days, has capitulated to the Germans proves false.

(Special to the New York Herald.)

TOURS, Oct. 14.—Gen. Lyod's capture of a quantity of valuable horses were captured at Orleans.

DISSATISFACTION AT THE PARISIAN ARRANGEMENTS.

There are reports that differences of opinion exist in the Government. Monday evening some of the members of the Government of National Defense, including Jules Favre, Jules Simon, and Ernest Picard, met at the residence of Gambetta, in the Rue de Grenelle, and had a violent discussion, which resulted in the withdrawal of the members of the Government from the city. The Parisians, however, are not informed of the occurrence, which is attributed to the jealousy of Gambetta.

FOOD IN PARIS.

A diary written at Paris, which had fallen into Germans' hands, admits that Paris is provisioned for sixty-two months, and the people are not suffering from hunger, and the soldiers are well fed. The diary is dated Sept. 20, and by a pitched battle changes the location.

AT TOURS.

TOURS, Oct. 14.—The National Guards of Tours, and the Garde Mobile of the Rhone de Vilar, and made a demonstration in favor of immediate action. They demanded arrest of the Orleanist members of the Government. Some arrests were made, but the prisoners were released.

MAGAZINES AND JOURNALS.

Our readers are well aware that we have in mind some, from time to time, toward the success of our home magazine, the Western Monthly. It was first started in the '60s during the war, and was published at Chicago. Its design was magnificent, but there should be more books as to its success. It was planned by gentlemen of literary taste and established experience, who thought it truly a pity that Chicago and a firm faith in Chicago as a literary centre. Its corps of writers was composed of ladies and gentlemen who had never had any experience in the magazine business. They were, however, proved to have a foundation sufficiently strong to build upon, and it gradually grew stronger and stronger until it became a first-class publication, but it was not successful. Then came the disastrous Wabash evening fire, which swallowed up it a severe installation, but there was still promised that fifteen from this time it would be published in a position. We are glad to know where it will become a power in the West, by the formation of a company of business and literary gentlemen of publication interest upon a very extensive scale. The widely-known and extensive printing establishment of Messrs. Church, Goodman & Donnelley is one of the eminent of the way organization, and it is designed to carry on the business of printing in all its branches, electrotyping, stereotyping and binding. Mr. S. H. Donnelley will be the mechanical superintendent of the new establishment, and the Monthly will remain in the same responsible hands which control it. The company has a capital stock of $600,000, and it is proposed to work during the coming year, a building specially for its business. It is proposed to publish a literature of the times, in addition to the issues that Harper's Magazine gives to the issues of Hayes & Zeus, and the Atlantic Monthly to that of Fields, Osgood & Co. The Overland is the only magazine that is now published on the Pacific coast, and it encourages us for all concerned, as it is the pleasure, not only in congratulating the managers of the Monthly that new fields of publishing are opening, but also to say that Chicago is capable in general, that Chicago has made another step forward as culture.

We have received the initial number of a neat little paper called The Courier, published at Rock Island every Saturday morning, and devoted to the interests of an insurance agency in that locality which has control of it. It contains a miscellaneous collection of matter.

The October number of Bunce and Huntington & Osborne's excellent new magazine, is just out, containing a review of Gosse's "Northern Studies," reviewed by C. G. Leland; "On Vindictive Damages," by Charles A. Morrill; "Supreme Court of Alabama—Statute of Limitations Suspended during the War;" and other miscellaneous contributions of interest to the profession.

The Western Home, a very popular magazine, which Chicago has always appeared under new auspices, Mr. J. A. Stoddard having disposed of his interest to S. and Mr. Edward F. Fenn appearing as managing editor. Conducted by Mary E. Lee, the other last number makes the juvenile department of the magazine very attractive. The current number promises very well for the new editorial management, and is filled full of very pleasant reading matter.

The new magazine combination of Wilson & Scribner, under the editorial supervision of Mr. Holland, will make its appearance in April. The first issue will contain a poem by William Cullen Bryant; the second instalment of a new serial, "Wilfrid Cumberland," by George MacDonald, the rising English novelist; "Topics of the Time," by Dr. Holland; a long humorous poem by the same, illustrated by Nugent, entitled "Jeremy Twin—His Drive to Chicago and Back;" "Sketches of Travel," by Bayard Taylor; "Sketches of Artist Life," by Mrs. Davis, entitled "Nazarene;" a story by Dr. Hayes, the Arctic explorer; "The Bondage of the Period," by a Georgian; "Life's Day with Dr. Holland," by Mrs. Mary E. Dodge; "The Defiant of the Sea," by Dr. J. Edwards Clark; and forty-nine Illustrations.

"The Musical Independent," for October, published by Lyon & Healy, under the editorial conduct of Mr. Matthews, is an admirable number, and one which is worthy of very careful attention from all lovers of music. The contents embrace the concluding part of "Nature on Handel," delivered before the Musical Conference of Chicago; "Music," by Rev. R. C. Lehmer; statistical article on Anabach Jenny Forbes; "The Bells of Abingdon," a poem; "Another Instrument of Torture," translated from the German by Adolphus Wolfram; "Music in the Home;" "Music;" "Music in the Schools;" "Music;" "Music;" "Music

A JURY WARRANT DISCHARGED.

Margaret J. C. Brown vs. Rowland P. Adams. Assumpsit upon instrument in declaration. Defendant's counsel moved for a rule upon complainant's counsel to show cause why the jury warrant of March, 1869, the Court was the owner of the shares of the capital stock of the First National Bank of Chicago, which the defendant alleged was subject to transfer on the books of the said bank in payment or by attorney on the day
